Such hearings as are contemplated are looked upon as a good thing, especially since under the new city charter the single body of only nine members which comprises the city council is elected from among the citizenship at large. Hence the council may, as is the case in this instance, include two residents of one section and none from some other.

Commerce entering the port of Boston during the year 1909 was considerably increased over that of 1908, and that of the year now begun seems in a fair way to show a distinct if not a great improvement over that of the past year.

During 1909 the number of vessels engaged in foreign commerce which entered the port of Boston was 1390, as compared with 1355 vessels in the year 1908, an increase of 35, according to figures published by the Boston News Bureau. The results of the eclared and the outcome is fairly in accordance with the most moderate and cordance with the most moderate and The Unionist's have, so far, gained 52 seats and lost 10, nine to the Liberals and one to the Labor party. In consequence the position of parties sent moment is as follows: Unionists 120, Liberals 99, Labor 19, and Nationalists 28. In other words the Unionists have a majority of two over the combined forces of the Liberals and men, and the controlling influence is held by the 28 Nationalists. This is naturally very far from giving an adeidea. of the situation. The Scotish and Welsh constituencies are fairly olidly Radical and nave bet to poll. The real battle will be fought out in the English agricultural constituencies, which at the last election were wept by the Liberal party. If the promise of the duty on corn should prove superior to the fear of dear bread, and these con stituencies should on this occasion be swept by the Unionists, a small Conserva cannot be said to be very likely. NATIONAL MONETARY BOARD ISSUES FIRST REPORT ON SUBJECT

WASHINGTON-Today was issued the first of the important series of financial monographs resulting from the exhaustive investigations pursued in this country and abroad under the auspices of the national monetary commission-"The History of Banking in Canada," by Roeliff M. Breckenridge, whose work on that subject, published some 20 years ago, has long been recognized as authoritative.

The problems of banking there are not complicated as they are with us, where alongside of 7000 banks organized under national laws there are some 18, 000 other institutions organized under the varying laws, of the 46 states of

After the enactment of certain preliminary legislation the Dominion Parliament passed the bank act of 1871, which, with subsequent revisions, now constitutes the fundamental law of all banks doing business in Canada. In a few cases special provisions were made for banks doing business under royal charters and for a few others where particular conditions made the general act inapplicable

Mr. Breckinridge shows that the Canadian system is in many respects similar to the Scotch banking system; it primarily and fundamentally branch banking system. There are, today, it appears, only 29 banks in Canada, and 19 of that number have their head offices in Toronto and Montreal, their branches, numbering more than 2000, being distributed from the Atlantic to the Pacific, into the Yukon country, and even into foreign countries. The chartered banks are members of the Canadian Bankers Association, founded in 1892, but which was given the status of a public corporation under the amendment of 1900, and was authorized to establish clearing houses for banks in any place in the Dominion and to make rules for their government, subject, however, to the approval of the treasury board. To it was also given supervisory control of the note issues of the banks in order to promite uniformity and to prevent fraudulent overissues, and the power to take charge of the affairs of a failed bank through a curator. By these and other powers It exercises a large measure of influence over the policies and practises of the banks in general.

INCREASED COST OF LIVING IS DISCUSSED BY SENATOR LODGE

WASHINGTON - The Senate Friday received the benefit of the insistence of Senator Lodge, who for weeks has been preparing a mass of figures and kindred data about wages here and abroad and about the high price of living. He addressed the upper branch to show that the protective tariff is hardly at all to blame, and his intention was to have the matter printed as a separate document for perusal by the Massachusetts voters.

The senator spoke briefly, but he said enough to draw the fire of Senator Bacon of Georgia. The latter specially criticized the Massachusetts senator's showing about the present high cost of living. He said Mr. Lodge should give the current figures and not yearly averages, which were materially lower

"The specific duty on meats and food products," declared the Georgian, "are largely, but not entirely, responsible for high prices." He quoted recent newspaper statistics that beef is from 4 to 9 ents a pound cheaper in England than in the United States and that there is a difference of about 25 per cent in the cost of foodstuffs at Windsor, Canada. and across the line at Detroit, Mich. "The question as a whole," said Mr.

Lodge, "is too important, too complex, and too large to be dealt with without a due consideration of the many elements which enter into the determination of the cost of living."

Using Sauerbeck tables of world prices, which are published monthly by the Royal Statistical Society in England, Senator Lodge argued that there has combinations, retailers' profits and tar-

So "The Parish Register" had a clear field.

The plan of the poem is extremely simple. The village pastor sits down to review the record of the year. "The year revolves and I again explore

The simple annals of my parish poor.' With the book before him he falls to Goldsmith's Auburn and Eden, and the actual village life as he knows it. A picture of the homes of the "abstemious few" rises before him and there can be no doubt that we have here an accurate description of the best class of homes with which he was familiar in his youth. Security and Comfort

We cordially invite you to inspect the armor plate safe deposit vault and the coupon rooms in our Court Street building. We take special pride in this department and we shall appreciate an opportunity to explain its many up-to-date features.

The vault itself, with walls of steel armor plate and concrete and two massive doors fitted with every safety device, is a guarantee of security; while the light, comfortable rooms, always at the disposal of box renters, give absolute privacy for examining securities or valuables, or for writing.

We shall be glad to mail photographs of this department to your address.

MUSEUM TO GIVE NEW ART COURSE

Beginning Next Month It Is Hoped to Secure Credit for College Students Toward Degree.

The Museum of Fine Arts today announces two special collegiate courses on art beginning in February and running through the second semester of the college year. These courses are similar to those of the Lowell Institute. They are designed to enable a moderate number of students unable regularly to enroll in the school to enjoy the benefits of the expert teachers attached to the institution

The officials hope that the present plan may be continued by which regularly matriculated students in certain colleges in the vicinity, whose work is satisfactory to the colleges, may credit one of these courses toward a degree, and Boston teachers toward a promotional examination

The fee is $5 for each course. Application blanks will be sent upon request

NEW YORK SCHOOL REPORT IS ISSUED

Supt. William H. Maxwell Advocates a Broader Exercise of Authority by the day night and a song service was conducted by Charles M. Alexander in the City Over Pupils.

NEW YORK - William H. Maxwell, who has just been reelected for a third six-year term as city superintendent of schools, advances some unique ideas in his annual report which has just been made public. If carried out they will result in greatly widening the parental care and surveillance exercised by the city over school children.

The report recommends that arrangements be made to supply simple food at cost price to children in the public schools. He also recommends more openair classrooms and that evening summer schools be established to teach English and civics to immigrants.

Superintendent Maxwell reports 730, 234 pupils in the city's schools as against 717,250 a year ago. There are excess sittings in the schools but they are so scattered as to be unavailable for between 40,000 and 50,000 part time scholars. There are 27,152 graduates in the elementary schools.

A great deal of good was accomplished for the automobile industry by the sealed bonnet contest held some time ago under the auspices of the Automobile Club of America. The fact that out of 50 entries more than 40 cars were able to withstand the gruelling contest, is sufficient evidence that the motor car has reached as near as possible the stage of

Track racing of course, in many instances, such as 24-hour contests, accomplishes a great deal for the industry. The shorter track events do not bring out the real merits of an automobile except in the matter of power and

TO NEW QUARTERS

On Feb. 1 the Whitten-Gilmore Company expects to move into its new service department, which is located at 26 Green street, Cambridge, Mass. At this location the company has had erected a building 50 by 200 containing 10,000 square feet without a post, running through one entire block from Green to Franklin streets. This will give the ocal agents of the Chalmers-Detroit and Hudson motor cars one of the largest service departments in New England, and in the future the parts department formerly located at 907 Boylston street, and the repair department formerly located at the corner of West Newton and Falmouth streets, will be combined in the new building.

The location of the building is accessible to all automobilists and within a moment's walk from the electrics on Massachusetts avenue. With this addition to its business, the Whitten-Gilmore Company expects to be able to give they are entitled, but which unfortunately it feels they have not enjoyed in the past on account of the small conditions under which they operate.

Announcement

For the benefit of our many prospective customers who have talked with us in reference to trading in their cars for the

Valveless "American Simplex"

We would call attention to the fact that after March 1, 1910 we will not take any more cars in trade, as our own product is too broadly guaranteed to warrant sustaining any loss by taking over second-hand cars.

We will, however, endeavor to consummate the sale of the old car for a customer without charging a selling commission.

Booklet for Investors Messrs. Lombard & Son, Incorporated

Dealers in Eastern Kansas, Western Missouri and California Tax-Exempt Mortgages and Western Bonds, whose offices are at Kansas City, San Francisco, and 804 Barristers' Hall, Boston, Mass., have just published a copyrighted booklet dealing with investments which should prove interesting to all classes of investors. These yield 4% per cent on School and Municipal Bonds, to 5, 5% and 6 per cent on Public Utility Bonds, and loans secured on improved farms in Kansas, Missouri and California. It has invested over $6,000,000 for one institution, which is increasing its investments. The booklets are furnished free

While those who hear her laughing voice, Her roguish smile remark. Are wont with pleased accord to say "She's happy as a -lark."

Yet. oftentimes, I grieve to add, If vexed or hurt by care. Transformed at once, this maid becomes As cross as any-bear.

And then our tongues in mild reproof Of conduct bad we loose, And with a frown address her thus: "You silly little-goose!"

Throughout the day her little form First here, then there, we see, And in amazement, say she is As busy as a-bee.

At last when evening shadows fall And silence rules the house, In slumbering she rests at ease, As quiet as a-mouse.

How she can be at once a goose, And on the selfsame day A mouse, a lark, a bee, and bear, Is more than I can say.

Yet none the less will I maintain. Nor contradiction fear, That in addition to all else She's just a little-dear.

COOKING SCHOOL FUDGE.

Western Christian Advocate.

A girl tells in School Education how she learned to make fudge in cooking school. She says:

"First we took 11/2 cups of sugar, two thirds of a cup of milk, two teaspoons of butter and one square of grated chocolate. Then we mixed all these ingredients together and put them on the stove to boil. It was to be boiled until it formed a soft ball when tried in water. After it had boiled long enough we moved it from the stove, then we added the vanilla. After a vigorous beating it was then ready to be poured into a buttered pan. Then we put it in a cool place, and when it was not quite hard we cut it into squares, after which we set it in a cool place to harden."

First was Robert Burns, crowned in 1787 and present holder of title was similarly honored in 1908.

ROBERT BURNS.

FAY HEMPSTEAD

THERE have been three poets laureate in the history of Freemasonry and Fay Hempstead, now living at Little Rock, Ark., has the honor of being one of the three. The first of these was Robert Burns, who was crowned at Canongate Kilwining Lodge, No. 2, Edinburgh, Scotland, on April 1, 1787.

The second was Robert Morris, who was crowned in Grand Lodge, New York, on Dec. 17, 1884. He was the author some 300 poems and his name is found on the title page of about 30 different volumes. Among his most noted poems are: "The Level and the Square," "The Five Points of Fellowship," "One Hour with You," "The Master Cometh," and "The Auld Lang Syne of Freemasonry." The Masons have commemorated his work by the erection of a beautiful granite shaft of fine proportions, inscribed with Masonic emblems, in his home town of Lagrange, Ky., which was put up in 1891. The plan of erecting the monument originated with Capt. H. B. Grant, Grand Secretary of the Grand Lodge of Kentucky. It was unveiled under the auspices of the Grand Lodge of Kentucky, escorted by the Grand Commandery of Roswell T. Spencer of the Ravenswood Lodge No. 777 of Chicago, representative of the Grand Lodge of Arkansas, undertook in 1908 to have a new poet laureate crowned for the United States and Canada. Letters were sent out all over the United States inquiring if the wish of the Masons was to have a poet laureate, and returns indicated that they did, almost unanimously choosing Fay Hempstead. Mr. Hempstead was then crowned at Medinah Temple, Chicago, on Oct. 5, 1908, with elaborate ceremonies, Gen. John C. Smith, Past Grand Master of the Grand Lodge of Illinois, being the presiding officer. Fay Hempstead was educated under grivate tutors, finishing at St. Johns College, Little Rock, Ark., later graduating from the University of Virginia. His first poem was written during his college days in 1867, and is now known in his book of poems as "Memorial Day." He is frequently called upon to write poems to be read at public gatherings called to celebrate some event, as "The Hundred Years," referring to 1776-1876. He has a published book of poems containing many such writings. He is now Grand Secretary of the Grand Lodge of Arkansas.

An Alliance for World Peace EXCEPT in one or two isolated quarters, peace prevails at the present time throughout the world. Recent occurrences are contributing mightily toward an amicable understanding between the two great nations whose attitude toward each other has lately been the cause of much concern. The outlook for the continuance of peace indefinitely is encouraging. Difficulties arising from trade imposts are being adjusted in a sensible and business-like way. International disputes and antagonisms of a serious character are conspicuously absent. There could be no better time, therefore, for enlisting the nations in the cause of permanent world peace. This, as Dr. Lyman Abbott truly said, at the dinner given Baron Kikuchi, resident consul-general of Japan, in New York on Thursday night, is the great idea of the century. And it is true, as he added, that the three nations that could most suitably and effectively lead all the others in putting this idea into practise are the United States, Great Britain and Japan.

An alliance between these three powers for world peace would brighten and bless the future history of humanity, and it would be none the less welcome because their combined strength would compel the respect of the other nations. "There are two ways of maintaining peace," said Dr. Abbott. "One is to be so weak as to be unable to fight, and the other is to be too strong to be afraid. We in America believe in strength." So do our brothers in Great Britain. So do our brothers in Japan. So do our brothers in all of the advanced and progressing nations of the earth. But it will mean the beginning of a new era, and a brighter one than the world has yet known, when the nations shall determine to use their strength in behalf of peace.

And if the United States and Great Britain and Japan shall unite to bring about this happy consummation, greater glory will be theirs than has ever come to them through the triumphs of war.

SIXTY years will have elapsed between the time when New York city held her first and only world's fair in 1853 and the "biggest ever" world's fair she is planning to hold in 1913. And every one will have to admit that New York has grown like sixty during those sixty years.

New

Postal

Savings

Bank Bill

Some features of the postal savings bank bill recommended by President Taft have been stricken out, and a new measure drafted by a Senate sub-committee consisting of Senators Carter, Polliver and Owen has been presented to the Senate. The most important change relates to the depositing of funds in banks. It is now provided that local banks shall be used. This change, it is believed, will overcome the objections of those who declared that the postal savings funds would immediately reach the large financial centers. The low rate of interest fixed for the postal savings banks, two per cent, it is presumed will not make them immediate competitors with the state chartered institutions.

In the event that banks refuse to accept the postal bank funds on the terms prescribed, the funds may be invested in government securities or in approved state bonds. The new bill eliminates the sections of the old bill providing for administrative details, and invests a board of trustees, to be composed of the secretary of the treasury, attorney-general and postmaster-general, with power to make regulations. It is provided that the postmaster-general may first limit the number of depositories to money-order offices of the first, second and third classes and extend the system thereafter as rapidly as practical. In many parts of the United States banking facilities for saving are meager, and the government institutions will be very welcome. The statement is made that a private poll of both houses of Congress has been made and that the result shows a majority in favor of the authorization of postal savings banks. The success of an acceptable measure would thus seem to be assured.

ALTHOUGH most of the retail butchers of the land still continue to cut up meat, many of them are finding it necessary to cut down prices

The Business Situation

Surface indications would lead one to believe that business conditions have been seriously disturbed during the past week or two. With the decline in the stock market, the consumers' war on food prices, legislative agitation and various lesser occurrences affecting trade there indeed has been some hesitation on the part of the larger interests. Some of the more cautious corporations are inclined to wait until things settle down somewhat, not that they are fearful of the outcome but in the hope that purchases of certain commodities may be made later on at more advantageous prices. This is the case with the railroad companies whose orders for rails and for new equipment lately have been much curtailed.

That these conditions are only temporary is easily understood when it is realized that with the heavy traffic demands now experienced by most of the leading railways of the country new equipment and new construction can be delayed for only a short period. As soon as prices adjust themselves the various enterprises again will go forward with a rush. This is what is popularly known as "between seasons" with many large institutions and a business lull is usually experienced at this time of the year.

The steel industry at present is showing signs of renewed prosperity. The quarterly statement issued this week by the United States Steel corporation reflects most accurately the general trade conditions of the country. It was a very favorable report. The earnings for the last quarter were nearly three millions larger than for the preceding quarter and nearly fifteen millions greater than for the corresponding quarter of the year previous. Unfilled orders on the books exceeded by more than a million tons those of the previous quarter, showing the constantly increasing business of the corporation. It is estimated that eight of the large steel companies, including the United States Steel corporation, Jones & Laughlin Steel Company, Lackawanna Steel Company and the Cambria Steel have nearly eleven million tons of unfilled orders. This means that the mills have enough business on hand to keep them running for almost half of this year, aside from the new orders constantly being received. Although prices of steel products are lower than they were in 1907 it is anticipated that with the enormous unfilled tonnage earnings will establish a new record for the first half of the current year.

Another straw indicating the direction of the commercial wind is the interest and dividend disbursements to be made next month. It is estimated that the amount to be distributed in February will reach one hundred million dollars as compared with seventy millions in 1909, sixty-five millions in 1908 and sixty millions in the corresponding month of 1907. With facts such as these as a basis there certainly is no room for pessimism in the present business outlook.

President Faunce of Brown University, who sees at hand a new era of labor in which employer and employee will know the value of cooperation and work in perfect harmony for a common purpose, voices the opinions of many who believe that better industrial conditions are soon to prevail. It is rather inconsistent for the heads of manufacturing concerns who long ago saw the folly of warring with one another still to remain out of harmony with their own employees, on whom they must depend for the success of their undertakings.

Municipal Ownership in Practise The city of Memphis, Tenn., is considering, among other civic improvements on a large scale, the matter of establishing a municipal lighting plant. A representative of one of its leading newspapers, the Scimitar, recently visited Nashville, which has a lighting plant in operation, with the view of learning whether it is giving satisfaction. The resulting report is of interest and importance to American communities in general. In 1902, it appears, Nashville was supplied by private companies with 382 arc lights and 437 gas lights, the annual cost of illuminating the city on this basis being $65,000. Since then the municipality has gone into street lighting on its own account, and comparison is made with the year 1906, because at that time the capacity of the plant was unchanged from what it was at the beginning. The cost of operating the plant in 1906, including interest on investment, etc., was $53,698, or $11,301 less than the cost of lighting the city in 1902. But in the former year the streets of Nashville were lighted with 848 arc lights instead of 382, and with 652 incandescent lights instead of 437 gas lights, as in 1902. Thus the actual saving for the year was $48,982.

Some peculiar facts were revealed. For example: The gross income of a private corporation's lighting department for 1906 was approximately $400,000. That company charges 12 cents per kilowatt. Had this same electricity been furnished by the city to the same citizens who purchased it, at exact cost to the city, the consumers would have paid $77,000. If the municipality had sold those same citizens the same amount of electricity at 100 per cent profit, it would have cost them $154,000, and yet they would have saved $246,000. It would cost the city about four cents per kilowatt to deliver commercial light to the citizens. At five cents per kilowatt the city could provide a sufficient revenue to pay the interest on its investment and to operate, maintain and extend its plant.

Conditions vary greatly, and it is possible that, although in the same state, Nashville cannot be taken as a criterion by Memphis. Numerous causes would contribute to the difference in the cost of producing electric light in different cities, among which are fuel, freight, labor and the character of the territory to be served. Nevertheless, the result obtained in Nashville, as illustrating what a municipally-owned lighting plant can do in actual practise, is worth noting.

Move up just a little closer, please, and make room for the million emigrants that are likely to reach America during the present fiscal year.

The Lure

of the Pole

Discussion of the possibility and the probability of reaching the north pole by aeroplane shows that the proposition is not deemed beyond the bounds of reason by those who are most familiar with this newer method of navigating the air and the advance that is likely to be made in it soon. The lighter-than-air airship has already been employed in efforts to reach the earth's polar apex and it is possible that the Andree balloon expedition did actually arrive at the sought-for destination before meeting with circumstances that made it impossible to return to the bounds of civilization and report to the world the result of its unique and daring undertaking. Commander Peary's great victory in reaching the pole, after centuries of defeat on the part of many other brave and determined men, no doubt marked the culminating point of interest in polar investigation, but to conclude that interest in the pole has ceased or is likely to cease because of his achievement would be to misjudge the speculative and venturesome spirit of mankind.

For centuries the north pole has stood as a sort of challenge to all men of all countries. That there was a portion of the earth's surface that had not yet been explored because of the barriers that hedged it about served as a constant spur to make men strive to reach that most inaccessible spot. Perhaps the pride of doing the thing rather than the thought of finding any palpable reward at the goal has been the strong incentive. But the pole will still remain a goal toward which men will set their faces. It invites, it challenges, it defies. Toward the middle of the last century it was deemed an achievement to cross the American continent "from sea to sea"from New York to Frisco. At first it was done in any manner possible, by following Indian trails and secret mountain passes. Later, in the gold-seeking days, caravans of horses and wagons journeyed across plains and over mountains. The stage-coach was followed by the steam train. Later, the ocean-to-ocean challenge was accepted by bicyclists and automobilists. Presently the airship and the aeroplane will cover the course. Pedestrian Weston is just now engaged in walking it, as he has done previously on several

The animus that has made men accept this ocean-to-ocean challenge will make them strive for the pole by airship, by flying machine, and other means and under various conditions that will continue to make their efforts unique and interesting. It is a different goal, but no doubt other men will reach it. And in the meantime the south pole will have received its share of attention.

In grasping an opportunity presented by the growth of the city planning movement, Chicago in 1911 will become a center of great interest for all people, the world over, who are striving to uplift the civic community, physically, artistically, morally. Its city council, on recommendation of the mayor, has approved the plan of the Association of Commerce for an international municipal exposition and congress to be held there in

Commerce for an international municipal exposition and congress to be held there in the fall of the year named. Those cities in which local expositions of this character have already been held do not need to be informed with regard to the popular interest that they arouse. Recently in Boston a municipal exposition held under auspices that are making for the general improvement of the city grew in such favor with Nothing could more vividly than this illustrate the educational force of such undertakings.

Little attention was paid to the first municipal exhibition in Chicago. It was hard to arouse the public at large on the subject of civic betterments. Other cities have passed through similar experience. But in recent years, as evidenced by the progress made in Pittsburg, in St. Louis, in Cleveland, Detroit, Kansas City, Los Angeles, Boston and Chicago, the movement for the elimination of evil and the pro-

the public that the time set for its closing was repeatedly postponed.

Other countries than our own will be attracted by this exposition, for while in some respects foreign cities of the better class are far in advance of ours, in other respects they might learn much from studying our methods. And they are aware of it. An exhibit of the best results in city planning, civic improvement and municipal administration at home and abroad will give an immense impetus to the movement for cleaner, healthier, happier living.

The last reverberations of the shouts from the baseball bleachers have scarcely faded away when it is announced that the American league season is to open only ten weeks hence, April 15. Perhaps ere long, with steam-heated baseball parks, the game can be made a "continuous" all-the-year-round performance.

Secretary Wilson Sticks to It Secretary Wilson of the department of agriculture will not permit himself to be turned from his original position with regard to one of the principal causes of the great advance in the price of foodstuffs. His idea is that the American people are suffering not so much from the high cost of living as from the cost of high living. He is not alone in this view. Many of the calmest and clearest thinkers in the country are with him. It should be remembered, however, that he was among the earliest to point out the certainty of the arrival of the conditions against which the country is now arrayed, if the movement away from the soil were not checked.

This movement has meant more than the curtailment of production. It has meant an increase in consumption, and especially in the consumption of the more costly articles of food. One of the fundamental difficulties at present, as the secretary claims, is that the people are leaving the farms to such an extent that there are not enough remaining to produce the food required by an increasing population. These very people help to swell the ranks of the consumers, and they soon cease to be content with the plain food to which they were accustomed in the country, and fall into the more expensive ways of the city.

A few here and there have long been contending for the necessity of stemming the tide toward the city, but they have been crying in the wilderness. Yet, it remains true that whatever may be accomplished by an artificial decrease in consumption, or through agitation, or even through legislation, the effect at best can only be temporary. Permanent relief from the conditions complained of at present can only come by increasing the food supply by production beyond the point of scarcity, or where it can be controlled by monopoly, combination or trust.

THE medals which the New York Chapter of the American Institute of Architects is going to give to the owners of the best tenement house and the best apartment house built in New York city this year will possess, in addition to their intrinsic worth, not a little value as first-class advertisements. In more ways than one they are worth striving for.

In 1610 the total white population in the original area of the United States numbered 210 persons. The twelfth census, taken in 1900, recorded a population in the territory then possessed of 76,303,387. This year the people of this country have got to stand up and be counted again. Census-taking every ten years is an enormous task. That of 1900 cost Uncle Sam about $13,000,000. Since then his landed possessions have in-

Taking the Census creased and his family has gained about 15,000,000 members. It is claimed that the American census is the largest, costliest and most accurate taken in the world. The enumeration must be finished within two weeks in the cities that had 5000 population or over at the last census, and within thirty days in all other areas. To perform this task promptly the United States will employ the services of 75,000 men.

The farmers of this country are expected to make a fine showing in the coming census. About 45,000 of the enumerators will carry agricultural schedules as well as those on population. It is estimated that there are 7,000,000 separate farms in America. In 1900 there were many millions of dollars more of fixed capital invested in agriculture than there were in manufactures, and the farmers have been getting better off all the time.

The cost of the coming census would be $18,000,000 or $19,000,000 if the rate of increase heretofore taking place were maintained, but economical and improved methods installed by Director Durand will enable him to keep down the expense. Much saving has been effected by the introduction of semi-automatic electrical card-punching, tabulating and sorting machines. The permanent force of the census bureau includes 700 clerks. When the new figures and facts are sifted out and analyzed much valuable information is expected to be obtained concerning our non-contiguous possessions. The work on the whole is of the utmost importance and affords us data for the solution of national problems that we cannot do without if we are to make intelligent progress.
